Pageant Depicts Christmas Scenes Throughout World

The annual Christmas Festival of Lemon Grove School will be presented on Tuesday evening of next week at 7:30 at Friendship Hall.

This year's pageant will depict Christmas scenes from several countries of the world, as well as our own United States. All of the junior high teachers are working together on the scenes, combining the talents of the many elective classes to insure a successful show.

Paul Cheatham, music director for the school, is in charge of the program. The school orchestra in its first public appearance of the year will furnish the instrumental music of the evening, The Girls Glee Club, busily engaged all fall with many practice sessions, is also ready to demonstrate its talents. The vocal ensemble with seven girls will help fashion the music which will represent the carols of many countries. Other music is offered by the clarinet quartet, the clarinet trio, the quartet duet, the violin trio, and a violin solo by Cathy Lou Pendergrass, accompanied on the piano by Marlene Dawson. There will also be selections by the brass sextet. Usherettes for the occasion will be chosen from the junior high school home rooms.

Tickets for the festive occasion may be obtained from music students of the school or calling at the registrar's office at Lemon Grove School. Tickets are priced at forty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for children. Prizes are being offered for children selling the largest number of tickets.

Mr. Cheatham is proud to announce at this time that the band and majorette corps brought home another beautiful trophy from the Mother Goose parade in El Cajon City, November 19. The same group will participate in the Christmas Parade at North Park on Friday at about 7 p.m.

On Tuesday evening the vocal ensemble gave a Christmas program at the Vista La Mesa Christian Church.

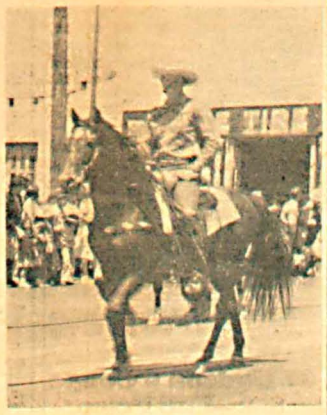
"Curlique," 16 Year Old Horse Makes Fine Showing at Caliente

In the feature race at Agua Caliente, when 8 Aztec Riders raced five furlongs to compete in the series of Range Riders' races between the leading clubs of the county, remarkable fortitude and speed was demonstrated by a spunky 16-year old stallion named Curlique. The horse is owned and raised by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harville, of Spring Valley, was ridden by Charles Purdy of La Mesa.



"CURLIQUE"

To a horse, 16 years is equal to 48 years of living in the human race. Curlique had never been raced before, in fact, had spent an easy life roaming in a meadow and siring beautiful colts in the county.

Despite the fact that he had not been ridden more than 24 hours in the past six months, and with aching feet from new shoes on closely-trimmed hooves this 16 year old led the field more than half way through the race, and finished third, against stiff competition.

The other horses were mere youngsters compared to Curlique's age. His swift pace against a limping start and other odds aroused the interest and admiration of the local horse people and when next he is heard from, it is sure to be an interesting account of a startling performance as his owners are getting him in condition.

Business Women's Christmas Party

The Business Women's League will meet at Christmas luncheon in Friendship Hall next Tuesday. Special Christmas decorations will be arranged by the social chairman, Mrs. Al Huebsch. Each one attending is asked to bring a gift not to exceed 75c which will be exchanged during a social period. There will also be carol singing.

The League is making plans to install a heating system in the Community Center building. Funds received from Powow have helped make it possible for the group to consider this project.

A committee is still working to help bring about a crosswalk across Broadway at Grove street. for the protection of school children.

The group voted $15 toward the Community Christmas Tree fund which is being sponsored this year by the Lemon Grove Lion's Club. The local merchants are contributing to the fund, and it is hoped that all organizations will also contribute. A committee, appointed to assist the Lions, has made green felt Christmas tree lapel ornaments to be given to each contributor. If you would like to contribute to the fund and get a little tree go to the Lemon Grove Radio Shop or the Lemon Grove Sheet Metal Shop.

SCHOOL NEWS

Once again the Safety Patrol boys will be awarded this Saturday, when Mr. van Gilse has as guests at the Grove Theatre the following: Travis Keaton, Stephen Griggs, Robert Fowes, Ronald Netzley, Billy Vaughn, Robert Chappel, Bernard Griggs, Dannie O'Donnell, Martin Small, Grady Redding, Gene Sowers, Roy Maxted, Joe Cota and Andre Proulax.

The boys and girls of Mrs. Kenniston"s fourth grade at the Lemon Grove School wish to thank the Review for the space given to Shirley Henderson's story about Little Sunflower. The class had a grand time studying all about our American Indians, and especially the Indians of the Southwest. They drew many pictures, made lovely notebooks, and wrote many original poems and stories.

(The following story was written by a little girl in the morning class of the third grade at Lemon Grove School. The children were asked to write a story using the new spelling words for the week:)

Little Mary's Trip
by Barbara Thomas

Little Mary was four years old. She had a kitten named Butter. It was yellow and white, like cream.

Mary's mother said, "Mary, we are going to grandmother and grandfathers farm."

"May I take Butter along too?" asked Mary.

"Well, yes." Mary's mother said walking behind the house.

"Let's go the north way," said Mary.

"All right," said mother.

So mother, father, sister, brother and Butter went to see the farmer on the farm. It was ten miles to the farm from the city.

Mary's mother and daddy were rich.

When they got to the farm they saw horses eating hay. They saw a goat and many things. They liked the horses best.

MONTEREY HEIGHTS NEWS

On Monday evening, Mrs. Madge Lowery, teacher in the Monterey Heights School, was hostess to a group of mothers of her first graders. During the evening a work shop was conducted, and materials for quiet time activities were developed in sufficient quantity for the entire class. Parents who participated were Mesdames Allison, Finkleman, Beaver, Dittamore, Reames, Tucker and Smith.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Verne Donohue, Mrs. Grace Burks, first grade teacher of the Lemon School,, Mrs. Lucille Hunt, first grade teacher of Vista La Mesa School, met at the home of Mrs. Madge Lowery, first grade teacher of Monterey Heights School, for an evening of shop work. They are preparing samples of each of the valuable materials for use in the primary grade level for the quiet time activities. When the sample sets are completed, they hope to interest the parents in making up quantities of sets for use in each school in the Lemon Grove District. At each meeting Mrs. Lowery served her guests a delicious late supper.

The fifth grade of the Monterey Heights School has a very nice science corner. They have specimen from tide pools at Bird Rock, La Jolla, where they collected snails, sea anemones, sea hares, mussels, starfish, crabs, chitons, and a large keyhole limpet. The students who accompanied Mrs. Dorothy Babington, the fifth grade teacher, on the recent expedition to Bird Rock were Peggy Moore and David Zastonpil. Also in the science corner are two turtles, a horned toad, and a trap door spider. The spider is building a new home in a glass jar. Sharan Hewitt brought a lovely leaf collection to class. John Shaw's father is building for the class a home for a colony of ants which they will get in the near fture. The interested young scientists are planning to organize a Junior Audubon Society soon. Mrs. Babington is assisting them in their plans.

JAMES DORAIS

"The use of food subsidies is not unlike the use of drugs—it is easy to begin, but much harder to taper off the dosage."

Those words of warning were delivered at the recent annual convention of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation. They were indicative of the new look being taken by many farm groups at the entire price support program.

To date, price support has cost taxpayers two and a half billion dollars and brought more and more stringent regulation of farmers in its wake. Meanwhile, the Government hasn't an idea in the world of how to dispose of the record holdings of surplus crops it has paid farmers to produce.

The Administration concedes the present program isn't working too well. Its answer is the Brannan Plan, which would subsidize consumers as well as producers. But the Nation's two major farm organizations, the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation, flatly oppose it, pointing out it would open the way for stricter regimentation of growers.

Farmers have every reason to fear Government regulation. This example, reported in Insurance Economics Surveys, shows why:

In the fall of 1946, an Idaho farmer named Merrill planted 460 acres to winter wheat which was killed by an early frost. He reseeded his land to spring wheat, and this time, at the solicitation of the local agent of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, took out Government insurance against loss, at a premium cost of $309.47.

Farmer Merrill's spring wheat crop was killed by drought and he hastened to file his claim for his loss, which amounted to $3960.30. But the claim was denied because the crop had been replanted.

No place in the farmer's policy was there contained an exclusion clause pertaining to replanted acreage. Nor did the local agent know of such a regulation. There was, however, a statement in the insurance application form which incorporated by reference all the rules of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. The particular rule against reseeded acreage had been published in the "Federal Register," a U. S. Department of Agriculture booklet the farmer had never heard of.

The farmer filed suit against the Government Company in the Idaho courts and won. The Government appealed to the State Supreme Court, which upheld the decision of the lower court. Finally, the Government took the case to the Supreme Court of the United States, which in the most sympathetic language imaginable ruled against the farmer.

Farmer Merrill lost his two crops, his insurance claim, the premium he paid, and the court costs, including the cost of the Government's appeal.

Perhaps it's a good thing that some farmers are beginning to re-examine the whole theory of prosperity guaranteed by Washington bureaus.

Talks and Walks
With Mother Nature

BY TRIXIE TREGANZA

TREGANZA BLUE HERON

Now that mere man has mastered the art of flying. birds are no longer the undisputed sovereigns of the air. To wish is to be there. In a twinkling we can go whither we will—so let us take wings and fly across the majestic mountains back to the great Salton Sea to the islands where there are more interesting bird people I want you to become acquainted with.

Stately, tall, dignified and aristocratic, perhaps the most statuesque bird picture on the landscape anywhere, is the Great Blue Heron or Blue Crane as it is often called. In the Great Basin country and the desert country of California, it is known as Ardea Herodias Treganzai—the Treganza Blue Heron — a subspecies named for the late Mr. Treganza. The Japanese, perhaps more than any other people, have expessed artistic appreciation of the Heron's grace and beauty, on their screens and potteries and embroideries. And where is there a nimrod whose untiring patience equals the Heron's as he stands motionless, hour after hour, waiting for that fish to wiggle close enough for one lightening dart to make it meat for dinner? See how gracefuly he tosses it into the air, and swallows it headfirst; or being too heavy and large to swallow, Mr. Fish is dashed into insensibility against a nearby rock. The wonderful ability to adapt itself to changing conditions and its varied appetite has helped the race maintain iitself. The Heron is man's benefactor. Its life is dedicated to his service.

During the long cold winter months when the streams are frozen, Mexico and Southern California are hosts to the Herons as their tourist guests; but late March and early April finds them winging their way liesurely back to their homes in the inter-mountain cauntry. Before serious thoughts of setting up house keeping can be indulged in, there must be a mistress for the household, so there is the marriage market where all the beau brummels and eligible young ladies gather. Out on some barren, alkali flat or spit of land jutting out into the water, the young folks form a circle. I must say old folks too, for each year Mr. Heron takes unto himself a new mate. One after another, the young gentlemen take their place in the center of the ring, skipping, jumping, careening and generaly showing off his particular style of beauty. Sometimes there is a free for all among the more pugilistic inclined, and with their long, rapier like beak they thrust and parry blow after blow, rarely to the point of killing each other off. The ceremony over, the ladies accept their future husbands with an approving grunt.

Now they are all paired off, and being sociable birds, they build their homes close together. Their rookeries are selected wherever a suitable place presents or where they come from time immemorial. On Hat Island are huge nests built of sage and grease wood sticks carried from the mainland—six or seven feet high and fully five feet across. Countless ages have they stood, bleached and glistening gray in the brilliant sunshine, and each year by way of renovation and repairing, a few new sticks and twigs have been added. On Egg Island, in company with the Cormorants, the nests are wedged against the boulders which are used as perches and sentinel posts. On the Great Bear River marshes, where the previous year's growth of tules bends to earth in a sea of brown waves, the Herons build up their bulky nests of coarse sticks in the troughs. Still another favored Heron apartment is the sheltering arms of the Lorbardy Poplars along the border of Utah Lake where eight and 10 homes are established in one tree.

It takes about 20 days to hatch the three to six, rarely seven, greenish blue eggs. Around 10 in the morning and two in the afternoon, there is a great commotion in the Heron quarters, for at that time Mr. Heron relieves his mate while she does a little marketing for herself. Then one fine day appear the feeble, helpless, awkward, ugly little Heron babies; and they are babies a long time, too, and stay in the nest until they are almost as large as their parents. They stay in the nest if they can hold their own, for it is a case of the survival of the fittest. Meal time comes often and the strongest baby gets the most to eat. Sometimes a weaker brother or sister is pushed out of the nest and left to die of starvation in the reeds below, for Mother Heron does not know how to get her babies back to the nest, like old Mistress Pussy as she trails her babies all over the neighborhood, besides. Meal time is riot time in Heron town. These hungry, young with their noisy chatter sounds like a mad deley of barking puppies and squealing, grunting pigs; but Mother and Father Heron never lose their dignity. Taking turns they leisurely alight on the edge of the nest, straighten out full length, then with a sudden, quick jerk they draw themselves up and disgorge the pot-pourri right into the nest. In this delectable Heron hash there is apt to be fish of every description, a frog, an eel, a water puppy or two, perhaps a salamander, a half-dozen tadpoles, a mouse, a rat, even a gopher and grasshoppers and dragonflies and crickets—in fact any living thing that the Heron can swallow. Sometimes the meal is not suffiently digested for the babies; then Mother Heron swallows it again, hies away to some perch where she patiently waits until the dinner is cooked just right.

When baby Heron is about one third grown he acquires his dress of slatey, bluish gray with its trimmings of white and black. But little patches of down still peep through the feathers until he is almost grown up. Young Heron have such an amusing way of opening their bills and panting as though suffering from intense heat, much as a dog pants and hangs out it tongue. Perhaps they are tortured all day long in the glaring unprotected sunshine, or maybe it is fright at the intrusion of some strange monster hovering about their home. You go close enough and they will voice their disapproval by hissing or perhaps a quick thrust of the sharp bill. At three years, the Heron children are of age and fully fledged citizens ready to repeat the old age cycle of nature.

USE LIVE-VIRUS VACCINES SPARINGLY ON TURKEYS

Unnecessary use of live-virus vaccines for pneumoencephalitis (Newcastle disease) in turkeys may do more harm than good, according to Farm Advisor R. H. Adolph. Deaths from pneumoencephalitis in turkeys have usually been light, but the drop in egg production in some flocks of breeder turkeys has caused financial loss.

Meat birds probably do not need to be vaccinated, Adolph says. If there are other diseases going the rounds, such as air sac infection or hexamitiasis, the losses may be higher after the birds are vaccinated for pneumoencephalitis. Losses from the vaccination may be as great as the losses from a natural outbreak.

If, after careful consideration, a grower decides to vaccinate his breeding flock, he should save enough extra birds to replace those which develop nervous symptons due to vaccine.

DID YOU EVER RIDE THE CABLE CARS?

One of the strange and wonderful little San Francisco cable cars which seem to operate without any direct ties to reality has moved one more step toward the land of legend by becoming the only public carrier in the world which awards a daily prize to one of its passengers.

Each day one passenger riding on the California Street cable car is presented with a bottle of Napa wine. The prize is given to the adult who boards the car as the fare register passes a given point.

The Napa car is the only one sponsored by an out of San Francisco group. It was "adopted" recently by the wine growers of the famed Napa Valley as a gesture of friendship toward the cable cars, which like the wine industry, are regarded as symbolic of the colorful early days of California. In recent years, the cable car line has met with financial troubles and the Napa Valley Vintners is one of several organizations which are sponsoring a car during the coming year to help assure that they will continue to operate over the San Francisco hills as they have for three-qarters of a century.

CALIFORNIA NOW SECOND

(Palms Springs Limelight News)

It's now more or less official that California has passed Pennsylvania in the race for population honors. The U. S. Census Bureau credits California with 10,665,000 residents—an edge of 32,000 over the Keystone State which drops to third place.

Our gain since 1740 is set at 54.4 percent. Only Oregon and Nevada have shown a greater percentage increase. Nearly 3,760,000 more people are living in California now than in 1940.

We still have a long way to go, however, before we overtake New York State. The latter has a population of 14,392,000, but registered only a 6.8 percent gain. If the two states maintain their present rate of growth we should win the top spot sometime in the early 1960's.

We have already wrested two notable "firsts" from New York. Some years ago the automobile "population" in California passed that of New York, and more recently Bank of America displaced Chase National as the world's largest bank. California auto registrations now exceed New York's more than half a million and Bank of America's resources top those of Chase National by approximately one billion dollars.

It is at present estimated that the population for the entire country is about 150 million. That's an increase of 18½ million over 1940. Experts are predicting 175 million within a few decades—and no doubt most of them will be living out 'thisaway.'

Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds

The Lemon Grove Camp Fire and Blue Bird Leaders' Organization held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the S. R. Close home on Central avenue, with Mrs. Joe Young, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Close, chairman of Vesper Service, stated that the place had been changed to the Community Center next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. Genevieve Porter and Mrs. William Sileneck, co-chairman for the Christmas party, announced progress of plans for this event to take place December 20, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the V.F.W. Hall.

Mrs. William Lee gave a report of the Grossmont annual district council meeting which she attended with Mesdames Young, Sileneck, Porter and Close. The Leaders' Organization has three civic minded local Camp Fire representatives on the Grossmont Board of Directors for the coming year: Mrs. Burton Snyder, social chairman; Mrs. Close, leadership training chairman; and Arthur Boese, personnel chairman. Mrs. Young also is a member of the Board as Chairman of the Leaders' Organization.

Following the business meeting, a handkerchief shower was given for Miss Dorothy Rapson, field director for the Grossmont area, who leaves soon for a position in the mid-west as an executive director. Miss Rapson, who has cooperated with local leaders in every way possible, will be greatly missed in San Diego by her many friends.

FARM RECORDS GOOD INDICATORS

The days of "easy come, easy go" are over, warns farm advisor E. C. Moore. The years ahead may be trying ones, when small savings and improvements can mean the difference between success and failure. Only good records can point out where these savings are possible.

Sound business decisions need a background of sound knowledge of farm finance. This knowledge can come only through an accurate recording of farm business.

To make record keeping easier for Californina farmers, Arthur Shultis, farm management specialist of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, has prepared a simple record book. There is a cash record section for keeping personal finances straight. The columns for personal incomes and expenditures can easily be checked against the bank statement at the end of the month. Bills handled on a part personal and part farm basis go into special expense columns.

Capital and depreciation records and net worth statements of farm and personal assets show whether a farm enterprise is successful or a failure. They also simplify the tax figuring problem.

The California Farm Record Book is a non-profit publication, designed especially to help California farmers keep their finances in a simple form. It is available at the Associated Student Store, University of California, Berkely, California, or from the farm advisor's office, room 404, U. S. Customs Bldg. The charge is $1.50 postpaid, sales tax 5c extra.

Equestrian Activities in and Around Lemon Grove

By MARGE ELLISON

At the monthly meeting of Aztec Riders, last Friday evening Ralph Rose was elected president for 1950; Jim Crosley, vice president; Sophia Crosley, secretary; Rosie Christenson, treasurer, and Paul Copeland, trustee for three years.

The recent death of a former member of Aztec Riders, Mrs. Ann Calkins, is sorrowful news to the horse world. She had many friends among the riders, and until her illness, she and "Cotton," her husband, were seen whenever a show or gymkhana was on. In loving memory to Ann and as a thoughtful gesture to Cotton Calkins in his dark hour (and there have been many of them during the past months) the Aztec Riders are working on the embryo idea of staging an "Ann Calkins Memorial Horse Show" on Monday, January 2, feeling confident that every club and rider will want to aid and support such a program. Due to the sensitiveness of a plan of this kind, Cotton Calkins was first consulted and his final reaction was "that it's a beautiful tribute to his late wife" and was deeply moved at the idea. Details for a top show of the year will be whipped up hurriedly, which should receive 100% cooperation from everyone, as the idea and purpose has a great deal of merit. Watch your local papers and listen to the "Tail Swithches" broadcast for details as they are later arranged.

The members of the San Diego County Junior Horsemen's Association are manifesting considerable more interest lately on their Association and with the fine roster of officers for 1950, elected recently, these youngsters will go far. The new officers are: Bobbie Dorman, president; Carol Smith, English vice-president; Ginger Major, Western vice-president; Kay Bouton, secretary; Pat Bell, treasurer; Jerry Pixton, Don Tyner and Tom Ellery, directors; Frank Kibbee, Gene Dodge, Milton Kelley and Clark Batchelder, adult advisors.

Southcrest Riding Club's senior group has organized a square dance team, on horseback. They hold rigorous hours of practice.

Last Sunday Major L. G. Otto officially opened his new equitation training school, at the Hazard-Culnan Stables, with a remarkable program, which the spectators enjoyed.

The Broncettes, of El Cajon, have reorganized with 17 members and new memberships open to girls 12 to 18. Anyone interested in further information telephone R-8613.

The Silvergate Riding Club will hold its annual Christmas party next Saturday at the clubhouse in Balboa Park. Aztec Riders will hold their annual party on December 23 in the old Lakeside School House. The Bar-O Club will have a big New Year's Eve party.

The San Diego County Horsemen's Association, Inc., held a Board of Directors meeting last Monday evening, which lasted until midigntt before all the business on hand was completed. The Association has selected a new meeting place and the December general meeting will be held next Monday at 8:00 p.m., at the Library Annex, 240 Prescott street (two blocks south of Main) in El Cajon. This is an important meeting and all members are urged to be on hand for the election, as three members are to be voted for instead of one as was previously announced on the ballot. Also, other interesting business is scheduled for discussion and the meeting will be followed by refreshments, under the supervision of the new refreshments committee. All horsemen of the County, and their friends, are cordially welcome to attend this meeting.

Veterans Life Insurance

Wm. E. Berry, manager of Veterans Administration Regional Office, reminds disabled veterans that December 31 is the deadline for those with service-incurred disabilities, less than total in degree, to reinstate lapsed National Service Life Insurance or to obtain new policies For eligible veterans in good health, NSLI will continue to be available at any time in the future under the law.

"In any case where the applicant cannot furnish proof of good health, and the impairment is the result of a disability actually incurred in performance of duty in the Armed Forces between October 8, 1940, and September 2, 1945, the requirement of proof of good health shall be waived through December 1949."

Policies issued under conditions of impaired health do not participate in dividends. All eligible veterans, partially disabled, are urged to consider this privilege which terminates December 31. It may be the last chance for hundreds of veterans in this area to obtain life insurance. This same deadline exists for obtaining or reinstating the Total Disability Income Provision which pays the insured person $5 per month per $1000 in the event of six months of continuous total disability and for which an extra premium is charged.

Attend Institute of Catholic Teachers

The Sisters of St. Joseph of Orange, who conduct the local St. John of Cross School, will attend the Sixth Annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute of Catholic school teachers of the Diocese of San Diego on Friday at the Academy of Our Lady of Peace in San Diego.

At 9 a. m. the Most Reverend Charles F. Buddy, D.D., Ph.D., Bishop of San Diego, will celebrate Pontifical Mass and deliver a mesage to the 275 assembled teachers from the 39 elementary and 10 secondary schools in the Diocese, which comprises the counties of San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Imperial.

A general meeting will feature an address, "The Teacher's Contribution to Christian Family Living," by the Very Reverend Franklin F. Hurd, LL.D., Rector of Immaculate Heart Major Seminary and former Diocesan Superintendent of Schools.

Sectional meetings to follow will consider "The Testing of Young Children" for kindergarten and primary teachers; "Values and Teaching Methods in Social Studies for Christian Living" for intermediate and upper grade teachers; and "Education for Christian Family Living" for high school teachers. Talks, demonstrations, reports, questions and general discussions will be the order of the day.

After lunch, a concert by the 100-piece San Diego All-City Parochial School Band will be followed by further meetings of the sections. The day will close with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The Superintendent of the Diocesan Schools reports that there are 12,200 children in the elementary and secondary schools of the Diocese, which offer standard courses in all subjects, and are regulated by Diocesan rules and meet all the requirements of State laws.

Self-Control and Decontrol

Coronado Journal-Compass

With rent decontrol to become effective in a matter of days, landlords are being reminded by the president of the Apartment and Hotel Owners Association that their action in the near future will have a far-reaching effect upon the city and the general area.

An immediate, unwarranted general raise in rents will play into the hands of the advocates of governmental controls in all their phases.

We have been taught and believe that too much governmental restriction is a dangerous thing—and have seen its effect upon peoples and economies in other nations.

It has been our opinion that a man who has been successful enough to purchase rental properties should be allowed to exercise his own judgment in setting a fair return on his investments.

There is the danger, however, that individuals who have suffered under unfair rental ceilings may now go to the extreme in demanding exorbitant rents.

Such actioin would result in financial losses to the community as well as the individual landlords. A large percentage of our transient population might be driven to other communities still under control.

The association president has stated that the group will fight exorbitant rentals as vigorously as it has opposed rent control; he requests that anyone asked to pay excessive rent contact an officer of the Apartment and Hotel Owners.

We also recommend selfcontrol in the change to decontrol.

Last Sunday, a beautiful birthday cake, ice cream and 15 guests helped celebrate a little boy's 11th birthday—a party held a month early for a little boy too week even to cut his cake.

Little Jimmy Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvy Harper, Bancroft drive, Spring Valley, watched quietly from his bed as friends observed his birthday by enjoying the cake of which he could not even have a bite. Then they said "goodbye."

Monday he returned to the Naval Hospital undoubtedly for the last time. Jimmy has been ill two years. A year ago in July he underwent a brain operation, then his parents were told he was suffering from an incurable malignant growth. The pastor was one of Jimmy's most recent visitors, he came to hold the last Sacrament.

Patricia and Donald Graham, children of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Graham Birch street, Spring Valley are confined to bed with scarlet fever.

Mrs. Laura Kick, Harness street, attended the Christmas Exemplification Team of 1949 of the Heintzelman Woman's Corps, in Los Angeles, Tuesday. She will remain in Los Angeles for several days visiting her many friends.

Approximately 80 persons, including guest vocalists were present Sunday at the inaugural services in the La Presa Community Church. Topic of the pastor's sermon was "Signs of the times." A junior choir consisting of 16 members of the Christian Endeavor group was also on the program.
